

Name _____

9. Charles Schulz's Birthday - November 26, 1922

My Name is Charles Too

Charles was celebrating his sixth birthday with balloons, cake, ice cream, and lots of friends and family. It was a beautiful fall day, and he and his party guests were playing games in his backyard. There was a bean bag toss, a hula hoop contest, and relay races. Charles's mom had purchased special little prizes for the winners, but there were plenty of snacks and treats for everyone.

Finally, it was time for cake and presents. One of the gifts Charles received was a story about a comic strip character named Charlie Brown, written by Charles Schulz. Charles was already a good reader, and when he saw the author's name, he exclaimed, "Hey, my name is Charles, too."

"I know," his mother replied. "Charles Schulz has always been my favorite cartoon writer, and you were born on November 26, just like he was, so I named you Charles."

Charles tilted his head and thought about that for a moment, then said, "Cool. Now, let's have some cake."

Fill in the circle for the best answer.

1. What number birthday was Charles celebrating?
 first tenth sixth second
2. Where was his family having his birthday party?
 backyard garage
 park dining room
3. One gift Charles received was a story about _____.
 Superman his grandfather
 Charlie Brown Peter Pan
4. The author of the Charlie Brown comic strip was _____.
 Charles Schulz his mother
 his teacher Charles Dickens
5. How did Charles feel about his mother naming him after Charles Schulz?
 embarrassed upset
 excited disappointed

