I had an amazing vacation. My twin sister, her best friend, and I wanted to explore outer space. So, we took off in a purple rocket headed for the red planet of Mars. A strange Martian flew past us because his spaceship was faster than ours.

We had a soft landing on Mars. My brother was excited as he climbed down the three steps to the pink surface of Mars. We thought it would be a hard surface, but the surface was bouncy. We did high bounces on the spongy surface. A friendly Martian took a great picture of us with huge smiles across our happy faces.

When our tired eyes started closing, we knew it was time to end this exciting trip. We went back to the special rocket, closed the heavy, metal door, and waved good-bye to our new Martian friend.
