Real Estate Agent

A real estate agent is the person who sells or leases homes to others.

The real estate agent looks for people who want to rent or sell their house and signs an agreement with them. Then, the real estate agent finds someone who will rent or buy the house and receives money, called a commission, for their services.

The real estate agent will advertise the property in newspapers or on websites. When someone is interested in the house, they take them to see the house or apartment.

When the deal is closed, they make sure that all contracts and agreements are properly signed.
