Feelings and emotions through songs:

The Singer

Your life is filled with music from the time you get up until you go to bed. Whether in the car, in the bath, or at stores, you hear music. It would be unusual not to hear a single song during an entire day. Whether or not we like it, we are closely linked to music.

Music can be good medicine for the heart when we are sick or feel sad. It can be with us during festive and joyful moments. It can even bring pleasant memories of special moments from the past.

Have you ever wondered who is involved in creating a song? Many different people are needed to produce a song, such as sound producers, music producers, musicians. But it is the singer that I have admired the most since I was little.

In case you do not know what a singer is, a singer is an artist who uses his voice to produce melodious sounds that shape the songs we like so much. Although singers are typically accompanied by musical instruments, sometimes, instruments are not used.

There are many types of singers. Their style or music career sets them apart from other singers.

Many professional singers are born with an innate talent, which allows them to develop their careers from the deepest part of their soul. Some singers must study hard and get intense professional training to develop their careers. In either case, frequent practice, rehearsing, and getting specialized help is crucial to achieving the voice you desire.

Some singers are also composers. That means that not only do they lend their beautiful voice to the songs, but they also write vocal music themselves. It is demanding work that requires many hours of preparation and creative moments. These people typically have a lot of imagination and talent.

Other singers are also singer-songwriters. They can compose, write the lyrics and melody for their song, and sing it. There are songwriters of many different musical styles, such as rock, pop, rap,

The lyrics of songs vary greatly. They talk about love, heartbreak, family, social issues, politics, religion, or fun, to name a few. Sometimes, they include a mix of several themes in the same song.

When a singer goes on tour, he usually travels to different cities or countries to perform his music. Famous singers pack sports stadiums and concert halls. Depending on the fame of the singer, the price of tickets varies, with some tickets costing thousands of dollars.

When I was little, some of my neighborhood friends and I got together and formed a rock band. I never imagined how demanding being a singer was and that I had to rehearse and practice so much. Over time, different members of the group left, and our rock band ended. Occasionally, we get together to practice some of the songs that we used to play, but never professionally. I guess I was not born to be a singer.

What about you? Have you ever thought about being a professional singer?
