

After school was over and they finished all of their homework, they prepared to go out into the street for their long-awaited practice. It would have been hours if it wasn't for their parents calling them for a shower and dinner.

In two days, the competition would take place, and they were looking forward to that moment. Who would win? We do not know, but we must not forget that the important thing is to show good sportsmanship. You should not be angry if you lose, because what you have to value is all the time you have previously worked and the good times lived with friends.
