

Vacation on the Beach

The plane was flying very high. Through the window, Martha could still see the sea. Martha took the conch shell out of her backpack. She closed her eyes and put it to her ear.

The vacation in Puerto Rico had passed too quickly. She was going to miss his grandfather very much. They always went out together to walk on the beach. It was on one of those walks that they found the conch shell.

"Put it to your ear whenever you want to remember the sound of the sea," her grandfather told her.

Martha opened her eyes. The sea was no longer visible through the window, but she could still hear it. The sound of the sea would make her feel like she was next to her grandfather.

She would never forget the sound of the sea!