Long ago, on a cold and snowy day, Omar, the ogre, decided to go for a walk even though the temperature was below zero. So, Omar opened the door and slowly moved through the blowing snow. He saw a yellow light glowing in a window up ahead. He tried to follow a narrow path that someone had cleared with a snowblower. Although it was hard to walk, Omar bent low and kept going. The light had grown bright by the time he got there. The fellow inside told Omar to come inside for a doughnut and hot chocolate. Omar and his new friend, who was a little older than him, had thrown some snowballs and made a snowman. It was nice to have found a new friend.
