Drew did not want to go to school. It was Tuesday; his report on baboons was due. He knew he should have finished it sooner. It even looked gloomy outside. He thought it would only take a few minutes to finish in the morning, but he kept hitting the snooze button. His sister Sue came to his rescue. She drew a picture of a baboon chewing on its food under a cool looking tree with a blue sky. This renewed Drew's spirit. He sat down in the dining room, wrote a few more facts, and was out the door when he heard the toot of the school bus. It was all due to Sue. He bought her a few balloons.
